PAYS WHEN WELL DONR.

How a Manager Succeeded in Crowd ing His Theater, St. Louis Times-Journal.

A theatrical manager recently gave the Times-Journal a very interesting account of his experience in advertising. For a long time he had played to empty houses: he had exhausted all of his usal means of attracting an audience without success; his highly colored and sensational displays, only to leave his splendid troupe without an leave his splendid troupe without an audience. Becoming desperate, he took desperate, he took from his already depleted pocket $1,000 and directed it to be spent in display advertisements in the city press, distributing it equal-ly among them, exacting the condition hat the entire sum should be expended in one day. The result was he had an immense audience. "Nothing," he remarked "pays so well as a theater if you can only get the people." The thousand dollars expended in advertising was insignificant in comparison tising was insignificant in comparison with his receipts. He argued that advertising pays best when vigorously done. The usual plan of dribbling it out in small sums, ne regarded as a great mistake, while bills posted on blank walls were not noticed by the class which theatrical managers desired to reach. sired to reach.

"The Chufa Played Out." Correspondence of the News. The News of the 11th instant contained an article copied from the Wilmington Review, and added the above head-We planted several acres last year in this crop, and fattened principally from it a very nice lot of pork at a much less cost than we ever witnessed before. We advertised and sold to a great many parties throughout our own State, and to some far beyond; and notwithstanding they have "played out," our experience leads us to reaffirm our confidence in them as the cheapest and best hog food in cultivation, all things

Our lard was good, and, like all other lard we ever saw dissolved during the excessive hot weather of the past summer, remained tolerably firm during the remainder of the year. It was sweet, and as good for cooking purposes as we ever used. We never used better bacon than we have had this year, and we could call the names of leading grocerymen of Raleigh, to whom we sold some for

To show our faith we doubled our crop the present year, with no other view than to feed hogs, many of which are more than half fat and chufas enough to round them all up nicely and last one dry hog till spring. They may prove a great exhauster of land where tops are gathered for hay and tubers gathered for seed. But where cattle are allowed to remain we do not think this is the case for we have as good cotton now growing where we cultivated chufas last year as we ever grew. We advise all who have not yet done so to give them a trial and to those who have them this year feed your hogs a week or ten days on corn before killing. Smoke your bacon with hickory wood till it becomes dry and of a beau tiful red or brown color and you will have no reason to complain.

Agency-All Bodies Buried. CHICAGO, Ill., October 14.-An official dispatch from General Merritt, dated October 11th, says that he moved down the river to a point near the White River Agency that morning. The cavalry who had been out in the different directions looking for Indians report trails leading to Grand River. The General has little doubt but that the Indians have gone to the Uncomphagre Agency. He was expecting Gilbert and Henry the following day, when they would then move toward Grand River. Seven bodies had been buried, including that of Meeker. Doubt is prevalent as to the number of men the hostiles are able to muster. It had been clearly ascertained that all the Uintah Indians had joined the Utes before the Thornburg fight. He conbefore the Thornburg fight. He con-clades: If my orders are to go to the Southern Agency and fight what we meet, I shall be glad to carry them out, but I hope that my instructions will not be delayed. Merritt adds his ex-ceeding regrets of the great amount of military supplies sold the Indians by the Lanchmen.

FIGHT BETWEEN A DEVIL FISH AND A BULL:

The Poulpes attack a Bull, and the Fight Extends to Humans---

Fight Extends to Humans—

The Result.

Fact and fancy meet each other so nearly in stories told of the octopus that people who read them are at one time inclined to believe even Victo Hugo, and at other times to disbelieve even the naturalists. Both are interesting, however and any person who has had however, and any person who has had the privilege of seeing a devil-fish, especially if the one seen happens to be a large specimen, can easily perceive what excellent material it affords for a wonder tale. The story given below was communicated to the Tokio (Japan) Visus by a correspondent, to whom it was given as a specimen of English composition by a young Japanese scholar, who was a candidate for the position of translator.
"The author of 'Shuyukidan,' who lived some sixty years ago was once traveling in Mutsu, one of the north-ern provinces. Walking one day near the sea beach he he heard the bellow of a bull, and went in the direction of the neise. He was then witness of an extraordinary combat between some cut-tle fish and a bull. An enormous poulpe, with bright purple eyes and tentacles six feet long had attacked the quadruped. Throwing its arms round the body, the monster tried to make for the water with its captive. Menwhile other octopi, in large numbers and of great size, swarmed on to the shore, which seemed to be alive with their big, round heads. Some of them assist ing their comrade, soon like him attacked the bull, dragging it down to tacked the bull, dragging it down to the sea. Their quarry, however, made a braye resistance, and succeeded in goring its first foe in the head and belly, and shaking itself free from its embrace. Before it could escape, how-eyer, it was firmly held by a still larger monster, whife others took solicitous care of the wounded one. The unfortunate beast's bellowing at-The unfortunate beast's bellowing at tracted a crowd of fishermen to the spot One of these, stronger and braver than his fellows, his limbs swathed in straw bandages, and a sharp knife in his hand boldly rushed to the rescue of the bull boldly rushed to the rescue of the bull, and cut through the tentacles which inclosed it. Other poulpes then attacked the fisher, to whose aid his fellows hastened, and a fierce fight ensued between men and monsters, in which the former were victorious, many of the squids being killed, while the rest escaped into the water.

escaped into the water.
"Two of the tentacles wound round the bull were so heavy that one man alone could not carry them. One was twelve and the other six feet long. The larger of the two was subsequently boiled in sections at different times in a big kettle. Some years previous to this battle, cattle had disappeared in a mysterious way from the same shore. The fight between the cephalopoda and the bull enlightened the proprietors as to the cruse of their loss."

"The Chufa Plucked Out." Correspondence of the News.

APEX, October 13.—I have the utmos confidence in the chufa crop, and believe if generally introduced, that it would save many thousand dollars to our State. The amount of money annually sent-out of North Carolina for bacon, waste, geese, etc., which could be saved by every farmer planting a few acres of chufas, is simply enormous. We are an agricultural people, yet we purchase from abroad nearly all we eat, drink

Individuals are growing richer, but the masses of our people poorer. Let us encourage everything that is calculated to stop the alarm upon us. I have no personal interest to serve. I shall have none for sale this season, but I do insist that I can raise pork at less than half its former cost and that one acre of chufas is equal to four to six acres of corn for hogs in the poorer sections of North Carolina. That I can really improve lands by raising this crop and letting the hay and stubble remain to be rooted under by hogs. There are many persons I fear in our land who would prefer not to give up their sales northern or western bacon, but it will in the end be to their interest to do so. Respectfully. H. C. OLIVE.

MERRITT IN DANGER.

PIVE THOUSAND UTES STARING HIM IN THE PACE,

They are Imprographly the trunched in the Canyone - His Public Attempts to Dislogge Them.

CHEYENNE, Oct. 12,-The latest news from General Merritt's command is of startling nature. A courier comes into Rawlins with important dispatches from Merritt, the nature of which the courier is not aware of except that mountain howitzers are saked for. The courier states that heavy lighting has been going on since last Tuesday mora-ing. At that time an attempt was made to dialodge the Indians, who were loested on commanding bluffs. Their location was too strong, and the whole force of the troops was brought out, and the Indians retired to the line of natural fortifications about three miles nearer the agency. General Merritt took advantage of the move and transferred his camp to open ground on Mill Creek, where the hostiles could not reach them from any surrounding bluffs. The stench at the other camp compelled the change, and a better position was secured near water. A reconnoitering party was sent out under command of Captain Montgomery, of the Fifth cavalry, to feel the enemy's position. It was discovered to be almost impregnable, and evidences are given that over five thousand Indians were intrenched there. This proves that reinforcements have come from the Southern Ute agencies.

General Merritt posted various companies of his command, several being infantry, on the eminences near the Indian line, and poured in a heavy fire. Shot for shot was exchanged, and the ral fortifications about three miles

Shot for shot was exchanged, and the Indians showed that they were well armed and had an abundance of are mu-nition. At one time they tried to cut off one company of troops, but were driven back to their intrenchments in hot haste. Through field glasses the het haste. Through field glasses the Indians can be seen piling up rocks to make their position more secure, and they seem determined to stay. Three companies under Lieutenant-Colonel Compton were ordered to make a detour and flank the Indians, but the nature of the country prevented. The Indians know every rock, and as the Indians know every rock, and as the the road leads through canons and bluffs they know the advantage of the r supply of ammunition fail they would naturally retire, and the troops are enticing their fire. Several privates have been killed and a number wounded. One officer, a new lieutenant, is wound-One officer, a new lieutenant, is wounded slightly. It is not known how many Indians are killed or wounded. The smoke from their camp-fires curls up regularly. The command is in no dan-ger of annihilation. Although the In-dians seem numerous enough, they will probably be on the defensive. The sit-

REPRESENTATIVE SCALES, of North Carolina, chairman of the House committee on Indian affairs, has now a report on the House calendar providing for a transfer of the Indian buréau to the War Department. It is understoo that the measure will be pressed at the next session, and the sentiment is favor of the transfer will undoubtedly be increased in consequence of the present Ute disturbances. It is to be expected that the proposed transfer will meet with the opposition of the Interior Department, as the Indian bureau is in all respects the most important of its appendages.

THE Baltimore Sun states that ex-Senator Poole, of North Carolina, will, it is reported, issue in a short time an open letter to the Republicans of the South embodying the sentiments expressed by him at the recent meeting of Southern representatives of this city, and urging all representatives in the South to vote against any candidate for the Presidency nominated on the idea of a solid North Mr. Poole justly takes the view that if a solid South is to be condemned then a solid North cannot be defended off of he

ONE of the campaign stories, which has been invented to help the Republican cause in New York and Ohio, is to the effect that the House committee on rules are fixing up a programme in reference to the count of the next Presidential vote, which will throw the entire control in the hands of the Democratic majority, and so prominent a person as Mr. Halstead, of the Cincinnati Commercial, has given public expression to the opinion that the Democrate in Congress will count in the Democratic candidate no matter by what majority he may be defeated. As it has been agreed by the committee on rules that no recommendations shall be made which are not concurred in unanimously, this would seem to be a if their own inherent absurdity were

THE account of Merritt's fight with the Utes, which was brought by the mail-carrier to Rawlins, proves to have been a large exaggeration, though not wholly without foundation. It seems that Merritt, after reaching Payne's position, made a visit to Thornburg's disastrous battle-field, and was attacked by the Indians, but repulsed them so sharply that they sent a flag of truce with a request for a parley. This was granted, and in the talk that ensued the Utes declared they would resist the invasion of their reservation by the troops. and on being informed that the invasion would nevertheless occur they withdrew with the threat to continue hostilities indefinitely. The statement in the mail-carrier's story that thirtyseven Indians were killed in the fight with Merritt probably had its origin in the fact that this was the number which, the Utes confessed were killed in the fight of September 29th with Thornburg's command.

THE OBPHANS.

It is sad at all times to leave to the care of a careless world a number of helpless children, and especially so is it in the case of the children of the brave soldier of the Confederacy who has lately died, leaving the Southern people a legacy from which nothing but honor can possibly accrue.

The living children of General Hood ten in number-Lydia, the eldest, aged about ten years, having passed away shortly after her parents now appeal through the last words of their dying father: "I leave my children a legacy for the South. I wish, if possible, that they should be kept together," to the tender consideration of a Southern

Splendid efforts have been put forth for the advancement and future wellbeing of these little ones notably by the proprietors of the Atlanta Constitution and Colonel Barks, of the New Orleans Democrat. As near as we may judge from collated figures the sum subscribed for their relief approximates $7,000. 300st

But this is not enough. Look at it! Ten children the eldest not ten years of age yet; the youngest, a little girl. eight months old.

Our people have wept over Dickens' heart-breaking description of the sorrows of "Little Nell;" their throbbing hearts have gone out with "Paul" when he crossed the dark river-"and he went out with the tlue." The same strong sympathy should help these helpless ones. To educate this familyto make these orphaned girls splendid women, as was their sainted mother to make these orphaned boys true men. as was their gallant father, this is the legacy that was left for the South, and let the South observe it.

We have received from New Orleans a photograph of the family-a "vacant chair" though is placed for Lydia. It is proposed to sell photographs of the interesting group, and thus add to the fund for their benefit. Have the States any Rights?

Madison (N. J.) Monitor. The platform adopted by the last Re-publican Convention of the State of New York, contains a clause, which, apart from party considerations, is worthy of earnest thought. The words to which we refer are these: "The Republic of the United States is a Nation, and not

This expression, or something equivalent to it, has of late been brought into very general use at Republican Conventions in various parts of the counventions in various parts of the country, and although the words at first sight appear innocent, and even patriotic, they are evidently born of a desire to revolutionize our system of governments. prement and centralize all power at the National Capitol.

There is a large and constantly in-There is a large and constantly in-creasing class of people in this country who are getting fired of popular gov-erhment. This class is made up of the representatives of accumulated wealth, together with persons of aristocratic preferences, who have no great amount of money to protect but desire to keep in the good graces of their rich neigh-bors, and be looked upon as belonging to the same high and envied class. But it is only the first named of this class are worthy of notice—the others class are worthy of notice—the others are mere satellites, carried by attraction through political space, with the great golden body, and revolving around it like the moons and rings around the planet Saturn. The first named gentleman, however, the owners of long heads and longer purses, united as they are by interest and sympathy, are a power that cannot well be overraied; they see the growing discontent of the agricultural and other industrial classes with the present management of the Government, and fear that if the people are permitted to have sufficient answer to such charges, even their own way they will increase the volume of monetary circulation and so reduce the purchasing power of their fixed incomes.

This, and not, as they profess, a desire to protect the Southern negroes from the shot guns of their late masters, is the cause of their great anxiety that popular Government should die, and strong and centralized Government take its place; for with the rights of States disregarded and the omnipotence of the general Government recognized, it would be an easy matter for any party in power to throw out or alter the vote of any State when necessary to success and thus prolong its sway indefinately. The right of local self-government is the only foundation on which our Temple of Liberty can stand-if this is taken away our freedom will be a thing of the past. The framers of the Constitution knew this and wisely allowed each State to retain sovereign power over its own affairs, uniting the common good of all. The restrictions laid upon the States which so far diverted them of the character of independent sovereighties were: "that they should not enter into any treaty alliance or confederation, grant letters of marque and reprisal, coin money, emit bills of credit, make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts, pass any blivof attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligations of contracts, keep troops and ships of war in time of peace, enter into any agreement or compact with each other or with any oreign power, or engage in war unless actually invaded, or in such imminent dauger as not to admit of delay, Why, then, attempt to change the institutions of the republic which have stood so long and worked so well? The suppression of the supremacy of States in matters that do not concern the peo-ple of other States, and the establishment of a strong and despotic govern-ment at Washington would virtually put an end to the Republic. In view of the bitter fruits that would result from such a course, we think both the Republican and Democratic parties would do well to leave this ground untouched, and we believe we express the opinion of every citizen who is both in-telligent and honest, when we say that the institutions of the United States as guaranteed by the constitution should be maintained intact.

LOCAL AND NATIONAL ISSUES.

WHAT A DEMOCRAT SAID: I know my Republican neighbor
Is honest and earnest and fair,
And all could depend on his labor,
If placed in an Alderman's chair.

I know he would not turn his coat for A bargain, a deal, or a trade; But I want to know whom he will you

Next year, when a President's made. Of course, this has nothing at all, sir, To do with municipal steals;
Whoever may triumph this fall, sir,
I know that my pocketbook squeals.

I fain would do one thing or t'other, Would separate this from that, For taxes are still such a bother

That all my investments are flat. WHAT A REPUBLICAN SAID: know that the Democrat yonder Is just such a man as we need. Quite free from suspicion of plunder, And clear of dishonor and greed.

But a stalwart Republican President Next year we must try to elect, And the notions of any mere resident

The party, of course, will reject. The good of the party, I fear, sir, Is scarcely consistent with mine;
As the day of election draws near, sir,
My pocket gets ready to whine.

I am ripe, sir, almost, for rebellion,
If forced by the party will
To vote for some wretched rescallion,
And submit to be plundered still.

WHAT JUSTICE SAID TO BOTH: Keep cool, dear friends, and don't worry,

But vote with your heads, not your hands;
Let partisans die in their flurry;
Stay clear of all plundering bands.

The charge of Judge McKoy, we learn, was a good one and well worthy of himself. The criminal docket was a light one; the case of Becky Lyon, colored, for the murder of Nannie Blackwell

Moreover, that Bob Boswell, whose evidence had been mainly relied on for convic had been mainly relied on for convic-tion, had made a statement to the effect

Life a burden from the sufferings caused by this terrible disease. Messes. Weeks & Potter—Gentlemen:
Please accept my most grateful thanks for

My hands were in a terrible condition, the backs of them being all raw, and I thought I would try Cutticura.

I tried it, and io! it was as if a miracle had been performed, for I will take my oath that in three applications my hands were as smooth as a new-born babe's.

I presume there are hundreds, if not thousands, who know of my case, among whom there may be some one similarly afflicted, and if so I would earnestly advise him to give Cuticura a trial.

Yours, very thankfully,

It is indorsed by the direct personal testimony of men of national fame and strictness of speech. It is not too much to say that no medicine ever had such support in its favor as a specific. The word of any one of the eminent divines who underwrite this antidote to dyspepsia has deserved weight. Their united witness joined with the experimental use and approval of the prepararimental use and approval of the prepara-tion by well-known physicians, removes all doubt. It is beyond question, a wonderful therapeutical agent.—Editors Religious Herald, Va.

Chaplain Randolph Macon College, Va.

Many cases of Dyspepsia within my knowledge have been cured by it. Cramps, Colies, Headaches and all sorts of pains from indigestion yield promptly to it. The cures of this sort are innumerable.

Col. Va.
It is highly esteemed here by the regular Medical Faculty and the people. It is excellent for indigestion and flatulent colic, sedative, soporific, tonic, slightly aperient, without nausea. Rev. B. F. Woodward, P. E., Na. Conf.
About twelve years I suffered from Dyspepsia. Falling in with this remedy, I gave it a fair trial. After its use I could eat anything with impunity. I am sure I am indebted to this medicine for what of health and physical comfort I have had for the last sixteen years. I have known many since to be relieved by its use.

Rev. R. L. Dabney. LL. D.,

Rev. Robert W. Watts, A. M., Va.
I have used the mixture in my family for years, and have taken it for a Dyspepsia Colic, which threatened my life, and was cured, eating any diet without hurt. I have recommended it to other sufferers with happiest results. It is the best tonic and corrective I ever knew. For prostration from Dyspepsia or Liver Disease it is invaluable. J. D. Eggleston, M. D., Va.

Rev. Robert W. Watts, A. M., Va.

J. D. Eggieston, M. D., Va.
It is a highly valuable remedy, and is more extensively used than any single article in the whole list of medicines, so far as I observed in my practice, for all the complaints in families from indigestion. I use it and recommend it. recommend it. Editor Richmond Christian Advocate.
This remedy is of tried virtue. I have seen Dyspepsia cured completely by it. It seems to be an antidote to our "National Disease." The ingredients are not kept by the apothecaries, and have been difficult to
